

Mazzo Lenormand

Marie Adélaïde Lenormand (1768-1843), più conosciuta semplicemente come Mademoiselle Lenormand, fu la più famosa cartomante della fine del 19° secolo, il periodo in cui nacque la divinazione usando le carte da gioco.

Per le sue predizioni si serviva delle carte più usate in Francia, il mazzo di Parigi, mentre non usava le carte che oggi sono note con il suo nome.

Il "Mazzo Lenormand", conosciuto anche come "Petit Lenormand", deriva dal giuoco "Das Spiel der Hoffnung" (il gioco della speranza), stampato da Johann Kaspar Hetchel .

Un esemplare di questo mazzo, datato 1798, è conservato al British Museum, parte della collezione di Lady Charlotte Schreiber.

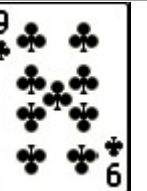

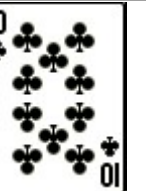

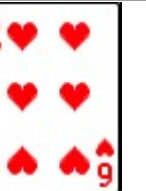

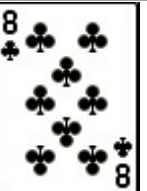

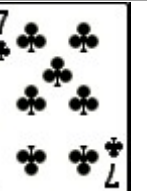

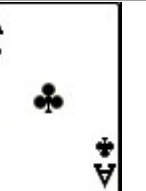

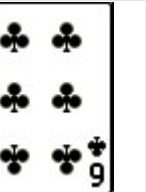

Il mazzo di Hetchel, diffuso nei paesi di lingua tedesca, raggiunse una diffusione più ampia nel 1845, quando l'editore August Reiff lo pubblicò con il titolo "Sibille Lenormand", sfruttando il nome della celebre cartomante morta da poco.

Nello stesso anno il cartaiio francese Grimaud pubblicò un altro mazzo, questo di 56 carte, con il titolo "Grand Jeu de Mademoiselle Lenormand". È un mazzo completamente diverso da quello di cui parliamo qui, con immagini astrologiche, mitologiche, alchemiche, cabalistiche, simboliche e botaniche molto complesse. Questa sua complessità fece sì che la sua diffusione, e il suo uso da parte dei cartomanti, fosse limitata.

Oggi se si parla di "Mazzo Lenormand" si intende di solito il "Petit Lenormand", stampato da decine di fabbricanti. Il "Grand Lenormand" invece è stampato solo da Grimaud.

Alcune di queste carte sono di facile interpretazione: 18 il Cane rappresenta la fedeltà, 35 l'Ancora indica la sicurezza e così via. Altre carte sono di lettura più complicata.

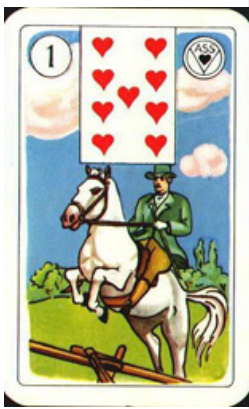

Per rendere più semplice l'interpretazione della carta alcuni fabbricanti mettono, invece della riproduzione di una carta da gioco, una scritta, di solito in versi, che facilita l'interpretazione.

36 Signe de douleur est la croix Et de malheur à la fois. Mais bien consolé tu seras si elle à côté se trouvera.	36 A cross weaves pain historically sad. A distance not close means tidings are bad. But mischance dissolves when the cross is near. The burden absolves if you persevere.		36.	36.		36 KRUIS Het kruis is een voorspelling Van onheil allerlei. Hoe verder 't staat, hoe erger; 't Meidt korte smart nabij.	36 KRUIS Het kruis is een voorspelling Van onheil allerlei. Hoe verder 't staat, hoe erger; 't Meidt korte smart nabij.
